Ms. Fields,

We are in receipt of the complaint filed against Just Want Privacy. According to the email you sent, it alleged a violation of RCW 42.17A.555, (though that did not appear to be specified in the complaint.)

Since RCW 42.17A.555 applies to “elective officials” and state employees, and people appointed to public office, there is nothing in the allegation suggestion that that any elective official has violated the statute.

Furthermore, if an elected official did violate this statute, Just Want Privacy would not be liable for their actions.

If we are misunderstanding the complaint, and Just Want Privacy has been accused of a violation please let me know. However, since a campaign committee isn't capable of violating RCW 42.17A.555, if that is the only allegation, please consider this our response.

Thank you.
