Re: Dawson Place Child Advocacy Center

Dear Representative Dunshee,

I am writing to enthusiastically support the Dawson Place Child Advocacy Center's capital budget request of $176,250. This funding is needed to complete Phase II of their building project to complete the building's exterior, roof improvements and to add child friendly improvements.

The Snohomish County Executive Office is proud to support Dawson Place Child Advocacy Center. Prior to its existence, child victims of physical and sexual abuse, as well as their families, were forced to endure multiple trips to various locations in order to access the services they needed. Each experience involved retelling the story of victimization, filling out new paperwork and answering another battery of difficult questions asked by yet another group of strangers. Each time this process was repeated the chances increased that the victim or family would opt out, or that something would fall between the cracks.

The co-location and coordination of services at Dawson Place enables all of the partner agencies to care for victims of physical and sexual abuse in a more efficient, cost effective and most importantly, compassionate way. National statistics show that one in four girls and one in six boys experience sexual or physical abuse as children. Snohomish County cases of child abuse mirror those statistics. Dawson Place Child Advocacy Center anticipates serving over 1100 abused children in the coming year.

I strongly urge your consideration of Dawson Place Child Advocacy Center's request. It will help our most treasured and vulnerable population- children- get the help they need to heal from their abuse and move forward in their lives.

Sincerely,

John Lovick

Project Information (attach separate page with additional details if available):

Provide a brief project summary, including the phase of the overall project, and the public benefit.

1) Describe the entire project and the phase of the overall project for which funds are requested:

Dawson Place Child Advocacy Center is a not-for-profit serving all of Snohomish County where families with abused children and developmentally challenged youth and adults have a single, victim-focused place to go to stop the hurt and begin the healing process. We served nearly 1,200 individuals and their non-offending family members at Dawson Place last year, and have served over 6,300 children since opening our doors in 2006.

In 2006, Dawson Place was started in loaned space. This arrangement was temporary so we began Phase 1 of our building project. This initial phase included the acquisition and renovation of our own building, providing only the essential construction needed to set up operations for our child advocacy center, and move our five partner agencies under one roof to allow all of the partners to serve child victims of abuse.

Currently, we are moving forward on Phase 2 of our building completion project. This phase includes finishing the exterior of the building, replacing the roof and making the interior more welcoming and child-friendly to the young victims that we serve, in addition to replacing our HVAC unit, modernizing existing bathrooms with greener, water efficient fixtures, upgrading the elevator, and sound-proofing our interview spaces for privacy.

As an accredited child advocacy center, one of our mandates is to ensure a child friendly environment for all victims, so that when they walk up and enter our facility they feel comfortable.

welcomed, and see themselves somewhere within our center, including age and culturally appropriateness.

During Phase 2, we will complete the exterior face of our building, giving it a less institutional appearance, by refacing, repairing and painting, adding permanent signage and an entrance canopy to make locating us easier and provide a welcoming entrance for the families we serve. Interior improvements throughout all the spaces children and their families are served include a professionally designed presence to help soothe and comfort each child that visits. Spaces will be fun and friendly with a Snohomish County theme, including mountains, Puget Sound, agriculture, ferry boards, Native America art, and other symbols that represent our Snohomish County community and the locations that our young victims live.

2) Public benefit of the project:

Dawson Place Child Advocacy Center is a not-for-profit serving all of Snohomish County where families with abused children and developmentally challenged youth and adults have a single, victim-focused place to go to stop the hurt and begin the healing process. We served nearly 1,200 individuals and their non-offending family members at Dawson Place last year, and have served over 6,300 since opening our doors in 2006 and the need continues to grow. In our first year of operations, we served 500 children and their families, and in 2013 we expect to serve 1,300 children and their families.

Dawson Place is the hub of a unique collaboration of the five primary agencies serving children birth to 18 years of age, and also developmentally challenged youth and adult victims of assault, abuse and witness to violent crime:

- Providence Intervention Center for Assault and Abuse
- Compass Health Child Advocacy Program
- Child Protective Services
- Snohomish County Sheriff's Special Investigations Unit
- Snohomish County Prosecutor's Special Assault Unit
- Dawson Place Child Forensic Interview Specialists

Dawson Place makes it possible for a victim of abuse to come to a single, child-friendly and culturally sensitive location, tell their story of the abuse just once or twice, instead of as many as 10 different times, and find all the services – for free – she or he needs and deserves to begin healing. Through medical and mental health intervention services, victim advocacy, and child forensic interviews, we help the abused child that has disclosed abuse begin to heal and help them return to a normal, healthy and safe life that every child needs and deserves. Dawson Place's role is to help families navigate a very complicated process, to coordinate necessary services and to move the case forward so the child is not re-traumatized by the very system that is trying to help them.

We coordinate monthly Multi-Disciplinary Team (MDT) meetings to discuss and address complex child abuse cases throughout the County, some of which involve victims not yet seen at Dawson Place, to ensure the best possible treatment and case outcome. Team members vary, depending on the specifics of a case, and can include partner agency representatives, school officials, law enforcement, child protective service caseworkers, juvenile court prosecutors, adult protective services caseworkers and many others. MDT case meetings are collaboration at its best, and strive for a better outcome for all cases reviewed.

And in just six years, Dawson Place Child Advocacy Center has gone from opening its doors to being “one of the best Child Advocacy Centers in the nation”, according to our recently completed national re-accreditation process, conducted by the National Children’s Alliance (NCA). The accreditors were highly impressed with Dawson Place’s skilled staff, carefully-coordinated and integrated services, and the quality of care received by abuse victims and their families. Now, Dawson Place needs to take the final steps to make our physical facility mirror the quality of our programs and ensure our long-term financial goals, so that child and developmentally challenged abuse victims and their non-offending family members can receive care in the safe, welcoming, friendly environment they need and deserve for many years to come.
